Council tax frozen again!
We did:

After four years of reducing our back office costs and freezing council tax while protecting the services you value the most, we are pleased that residents are recognising our efforts. We also understand that the appearance of local areas is important to residents and makes a real difference to how you feel about your community. You hate it when people litter. As a response to what you told us, we have launched a new anti-litter code. This sets out what we will do to stop people littering on our streets and what you can do to help. Our commitments include:

- Cleaning each of Merton’s town centres every day, with a dedicated crew working through the night
- Responding to littering problems and fly tips within 24 hours
- Enforcing a £75 fine when people are caught dropping litter
- Ensuring our 500 dog mess bins are emptied regularly and that a £75 fine is enforced where dog fouling is witnessed
- Removing racist and other offensive graffiti within 48 hours once we have been made aware of it
- Making reporting litter issues as easy as possible

You can help by taking responsibility for your own litter, disposing of cigarette butts in the gum and butt bins we’ve put up around the borough, using our free bulky waste service to dispose of larger items and letting us know when you spot a build-up of litter, an overflowing bin or other littering issues in your neighbourhood.

There is also more on the results from this year’s annual residents’ survey on page 9.

We asked

An independent annual residents’ survey asked over 1,000 people what they think of Merton Council and the services we provide.

“You said”

We were pleased that you gave us some of our best ever results. 73% of residents agree that we are doing a good job, 70% agree we are efficient and well run and more people than ever before agree that we provide value for money.

The Leader of Merton Council, Councillor Stephen Alambritis, writes for My Merton.

Before I became Leader of the council, I was a businessman. I was also the national spokesman for the Federation of Small Businesses.

So it should be no surprise that I want Merton to be run in a business-like way. Like you, I want to protect services like libraries and the weekly rubbish collections. But like all businessmen, I know that success is only possible if you get the finances right.

This edition of My Merton focuses on how keeping the council’s finances strong allows us to keep the services we all value. It’s also helping us to replace the crumbling pool in Morden with a new family-focused leisure centre where the whole family can have fun and keep fit at the same time.

Everyone knows that these have been tough financial times for the whole country, and many households have struggled. So it’s good to know that Merton has frozen council tax again – for a fourth year in a row. We hope that keeping council tax at the same level helps you to plan your finances.

As any businessman will tell you, you have to keep your customers happy. So I’m relieved that Merton’s customers – you – have told us that our business-like approach to protecting services and keeping bills down is correct. The independent annual survey of Merton residents shows satisfaction with the council is at an all-time high.

So I hope you enjoy this business-like edition of My Merton. You’ll find further details about the annual residents’ survey, as well as the council tax freeze and all the latest from Merton Council later in this issue.

Happy reading!

PS Let’s hope the weather starts to improve and we can all get out and enjoy our wonderful parks. We work hard to keep them clean but if you notice a build up of litter over a sunny weekend, call 020 8543 9750 and we’ll clean it up.

Budget
Merton Council freezes council tax for fourth year
Exercise your democratic right and vote

Merton is heading towards local and European parliamentary elections on 22 May, and the council is calling on everyone who is eligible to exercise their democratic right to vote. All it takes is putting a cross in a box. Voting is a way in which everyone who is 18 and over, and who is registered to vote, can influence who will be making the decisions in our local area over the next four years and in the European Parliament until 2019. Polling stations will be open across the borough in school halls and community centres from 7.00am to 10.00pm.

New Year honours

Merton saw two of its leading lights awarded MBEs in the New Year honours list. The much missed chief executive of Merton Voluntary Service Council Chris Frost, who died unexpectedly last year, and Anne Hoblyn from Mitcham JobCentre Plus. Chris was awarded her MBE for her outstanding and committed contribution to the Voluntary Sector locally, regionally and nationally and Anne received the honour for services to the unemployed and the community.

Awarding our future sports stars

Two local youngsters became the first ever winners of the Sophie Hosking Legacy award, named after Merton’s gold medal winning rowing star. Mayor of Merton, Councillor Krystal Miller presented Lil Walters, 13 and Dexter Razzell, 10, with their awards at a council meeting earlier this year. Their awards were for being the most improved male and female BMX riders after being nominated by their local club in Mitcham.

Future of Plough Lane

The owners of the Plough Lane greyhound stadium, Wimbledon, are keen to re-develop the site. Although Merton Council does not own the site, as the planning authority it sets the framework for the kind of developments that would be permitted. As part of its proposed planning framework for over 40 sites in Merton, including Plough Lane, the council hosted a meeting, chaired by an independent planning inspector, to review its plans for all of these sites.

Now you can picture the past

From 22 March, Merton residents will have online access to thousands of photos from the borough’s past and present, thanks to the Merton Memories project.

Supported by the Heritage Lottery Fund, the Merton Memories project is designed to tell the story of 100 years of the borough’s history through the medium of photography. Twenty-six volunteers aged from 15 to 70+ have spent the past year helping to scan and catalogue 15,000 photographs belonging to the council.

Anyone with an idea for a project about their community’s heritage may be able to access funding from the Heritage Lottery Fund to turn the idea into a reality.

The council is to invest in a brand new family leisure centre to replace the ageing pool in Morden Park. The pool was built back in the 1960s and now costs too much to maintain. It makes more financial sense in the long term to build a new pool for families to enjoy for generations to come. The council is consulting with residents this year on what the pool might look like, which will help to shape proposals to secure the future of a much loved facility. The council will be updating details about the pool consultation on its website.

Wimbledon Library showed off new look

Wimbledon Library showcased its new improved look and facilities at an open day for Merton residents after undergoing an extensive makeover. Following a two-month refurbishment funded by Merton Council, Wimbledon Library’s makeover has improved the look and feel of the much-loved building, making it more comfortable for library customers. The building has been redecorated throughout and the refurbishments mean customers benefit from additional study space, more space for lap top users to take advantage of the free WiFi, extra computers for customers to use and a relaxing seating area at the front of the library. The children’s section was treated to a makeover too.

Prudential RideLondon peloton to pass through Merton

Merton residents will line the streets of Wimbledon and Raynes Park again this summer to watch thousands of cyclists, many raising funds for charity, taking part in the Prudential RideLondon cycle ride as it passes through the borough on Sunday 10 August.

RideLondon has already spoken to many residents and businesses about their plans for this year’s event including travelling in and out of the borough on the day and what they are doing to make the day run smoothly.

Longer library opening hours

The council has introduced longer library opening hours and more support at two of its libraries. Donald Hope Library in Colliers Wood is now open on Fridays from 9.30am–7.00pm. West Barnes Library can offer more staff support to its customers on Mondays, a move supported by the local Friends group.
Free two-year-old funding

Merton Council is providing up to 15 hours a week free childcare for two-year-olds to low-income working families in addition to those who receive certain unemployment benefits. Parents who take advantage of the service will see their child go to an approved nursery, preschool or child minder in Merton, giving them the chance to learn new skills, develop their independence and meet and play with other children.

More recognition for Merton

Hot on the heels of winning the country’s Best Achieving Council award, Merton has been shortlisted in two categories at the national local government awards. The South London Legal Partnership, which is led by Merton and includes the legal teams from Merton, Kingston, Sutton and Richmond, has been selected as a finalist in the team of the year category for the 2014 Local Government Chronicle (LGC) Awards, to be held in central London in mid-March. Merton Council’s Merton Managed Accounts Team has also been shortlisted for the innovation category. Their work has benefited residents who need help with financial management.

Join in the holiday fun this Easter

Maintaining its continuing commitment to making Merton a great place for children to grow up, the council is putting on a series of courses for 8–16 year olds this Easter to inspire and entertain children in their school holidays. There is something for everyone: arts, sports and leisure and watersports courses, running at venues all over the borough. With a range of prices to suit every budget, children can have an Easter holiday to remember.

South London’s first tech campus

Wimbledon Library is home to south London’s first ever ‘tech campus’. Business organisation, The Lifeprenuer, set up the project last year for start-up technology businesses who were looking for a place to work from with other professionals in their field.

The start-ups are hiring rooms at the library.

Dig Merton

Dig Merton is a new community food and plant growing scheme in Merton set up by organisations in the borough including Sustainable Merton, Merton Council, Circle Housing, Merton Chamber of Commerce, YMCA and the May Project.

There are already a few movers and shakers in Merton turning their green fingers to good work for the community, planting fruit, vegetables and wild flowers on public land across the borough. For anyone wanting to get involved in community planting, the Dig Merton team has lined up some pilot projects.

Colourful carnival coming to town

This year’s Mitcham Carnival will be taking place on Saturday 14 June at Three Kings Piece. The theme is the Colours of the Commonwealth.

Attractions will include a funfair, stalls, music, Little League football tournament and arena events. If you would like to book a stall at this year’s event please contact 020 8545 4888.

Water sports in Wimbledon Park

Merton’s libraries offer a range of rooms and halls for people to hire for their events.
London Youth Games

The council is calling on young people to represent Merton at the 37th Balfour Beatty London Youth Games. For anyone who thinks they could be the next Andy Murray or Sophie Hosking, or who has recently taken up a new sport, competing in the capital’s Youth Games is the ideal opportunity.

This year, Merton will be hosting the London Youth Games BMX event in June at the borough’s national standard BMX track in Mitcham. Check out the What’s On section for more.

There are also plenty of opportunities to volunteer to be a Team Manager.

To register your interest, go to merton.gov.uk/youthgames and the council’s leisure team will be in contact with the trial details.

Boost for Merton’s greenspaces

The council has invested in its greenspaces in time for summer with new play equipment and outdoor gyms being introduced around the borough.

King George’s Playing Fields has had a double boost with a new outdoor gym being installed as well as new play equipment being added to the existing play area. Mostyn Gardens is also set to get a new outdoor gym during the summer.

The council has improved other green spaces with Edenvale Open Space getting new surfacing for its goal mouth.

Pollards Hill’s play area will also be given a refurbishment this spring as well as a new play space for older children. merton.gov.uk/parks

Frozen Again

Merton has frozen council tax for the fourth year running

merton.gov.uk/counciltax
Residents give Merton the thumbs up

According to Merton’s latest residents’ survey 79% of you think the council is doing a good job - well above the London-wide score.

Value for money
In a survey packed with ‘best evers’, more residents than ever before agree that Merton Council offers value for money. Also, 79% of people agree that the council is doing a good job. More than three quarters agree the council keeps people well informed and that staff are friendly.

The survey of more than 1,000 adults and 200 young people, aged 11 to 17, is conducted each year. Council leader Stephen Alambritis explained: “It’s one way for us to hear directly from residents what they think of us and the services we run. Their responses help guide us in our decision-making and the work we do to make Merton the best it can be for the people who live and work here.

“We were voted best achieving council for 2013/2014 in the national MJ Awards, and these results show the progress we have made.”

Good place to grow up
Young people continue to view the council positively with 74% saying they get the services they need and 85% agreeing that Merton is a good place to live. Compared with the London-wide average, significantly more young people in Merton feel the council listens to their concerns.

Making Merton affordable
With a freeze in council tax for the fourth year running, more people than ever before say the council offers value for money. Seventy-nine per cent say we are doing a good job. While crime remains one of your top issues, levels of concern have fallen steadily since 2008 and satisfaction with policing has increased.

While the majority of residents are satisfied with the way the council keeps the streets clean, concern about people littering on the streets has risen since 2012. This is something the council is already tackling with a litter-busting plan which includes 200 cigarette butt and chewing gum bins, fines for people who drop litter and the Love Clean Streets smartphone app for reporting problems.

Expanding our best schools

Work to build new classrooms in seven of Merton’s most popular schools is well underway as part of a council commitment to give all the borough’s young people a good education close to home. This is in addition to the twelve permanent school expansion projects already completed over the last three years.

Over the past decade the birth rate in Merton has increased by 39%. Add to this the number of people with young children moving into the borough, and pressure on the primary school system has increased. In response the council will have created more than 4,400 new primary school places in 21 new forms of entry by 2018 at a cost of more than £150m. This is a lot of money but by careful financial planning we can ensure enough places at good schools for all.

The council has also reviewed provision for children with special needs to ensure there will be enough places to meet rising demand. Perseid school will be expanded and additional specialist provision for children with autism will be made in mainstream schools.

Merton Council also has a clear plan in place to meet the future need for secondary school places. At present there are surplus places in our secondary schools but more places will gradually be needed over the next decade, when the growing population begins to reach secondary age from 2015. The council has already set aside £30 million to expand secondary schools, with more to follow if needed. Firstly we will ensure all surplus places are filled. The next step will be to expand good and excellent schools in the same way that we have successfully expanded our best primary schools. The council will then look at potential new secondary school provision in areas of need if required.
Morden to benefit from new family leisure centre

Merton Council is investing in a brand new, £11m family leisure centre to replace the ageing Morden Park pool. And the design of the new centre is over to you.

Morden Park Pool was built in the 1960s. But, with the building looking old and tired, it’s clocking up a growing repair bill. With construction techniques and materials changing, the council has found an affordable way to deliver the project, making a new facility better value for money than continuing to maintain the old one.

Leader of the council, Councillor Stephen Alambritis, said “I have a business background so it’s important to me that these plans are value for money and realistic. By being careful with money the council has been able to put funds aside to replace the pool with a new and affordable leisure centre for local families to enjoy for generations to come.” Consultation has begun on what residents would like to see in their new centre. Don’t miss the chance to have your say – to find out how, visit merton.gov.uk/future-mpp. Christine Parsloe, the council’s leisure development manager explained: “We want to build a family-friendly facility, which includes a pool, but other than that we’re really open to residents’ ideas.

“People might want a sports hall, rooms for classes and group activities or a health and fitness centre. They might like spinning bikes, a sauna and steam room, or crèche facilities. Once we’ve taken into account design fees and demolition, there will be around £10m for construction. It sounds a lot but facilities like these are expensive so while we want to hear a range of views, they need to be realistic.” Ideally we need a flexible space that can be adapted as trends change, according to Christine: “We want to know what residents would like, but more importantly what they would use, not just now but for years to come.”

The initial consultation will last until the beginning of April when all views will be considered, then designs will be worked up and there will be further consultation on the designs prior to planning approval being sought later in 2014. Construction will take about a year with the new facility open for business shortly after.

A new and affordable leisure centre for local families to enjoy
Go MEGA and win

Merton residents could win up to £250 each month – just for putting out their recycling – thanks to a scheme launching this spring. And there are cash prizes for schools too.

You’ve really taken recycling to heart since the council made the process easy, with mixed weekly collections and a food-waste service, and you are currently recycling 39% of your waste. The council’s new Merton Mega Recycle scheme hopes to boost that to more than 42.5% by 2016, helping us become a greener borough and saving money on landfill costs.

To take part simply register online and pledge to recycle as much of your waste as possible. Each month there will be a draw with the chance to win a top prize of £250 or one of ten £100 prizes. Once we’ve checked that you have put out your recycling that week with the correct materials, the prize could be yours. You will also be able to sign up on paper if you don’t have internet access.

Residents joining the scheme can nominate a primary school to receive a prize of up to £5,000. Assemblies in schools will help children learn more and spread the word.

For people living in blocks of flats, community prizes of up to £10,000 to spend on play equipment, gardens or seating will be up for grabs by flats and estates that raise their recycling rates most. Visit merton.gov.uk/megarecycle to find out more about the Mega Recycle. You can also find the Mega Recycle on Facebook and follow it on Twitter. Plus listen out for our new Mega Recycle song by reggae MC Mark Professor, coming to the website soon.

Boost your recycling

We could be recycling over 80% of our household waste – twice the current rate, according to Jane Alexander from the council’s waste services team: “It’s fantastic so many people are recycling but to increase your recycling rate make sure you’re including all the waste streams – paper, glass, cans, plastic and food waste,” she said. “Also check you’re recycling from every room in the house – bathroom waste often gets missed and ends up in general rubbish.”

Keeping Merton’s streets clean

Keeping the borough’s streets clean and free of litter is a top priority for the council and for residents too. Merton launched its anti-litter code at the beginning of the year and is committed to being tough on littering.

Love Clean Streets
Anyone who sees litter or fly-tipping on the streets just needs to take a photo on their smartphone and upload the photo to the Love Clean Streets website via the free app. It’s easy and the council promises to clear the street and respond to the person who has posted the photo saying when the street has been cleared within 48 hours.

Investing in our streets
The council is also trialling new street cleaning equipment including mechanical sweepers and more “smart bins” that use solar power to compact rubbish. The roll out of over 200 new butt and gum bins across the borough is almost complete.

Talking litter in schools
Trained drama teachers who are part of the Dangerous Theatre Group have been taking the message about keeping streets clear of litter into Merton’s schools. Through drama, they teach about looking after the environment and keeping the streets clean as well as the consequences of dropping litter. The drama teachers create a play with the children in which they are given the opportunity to act the part of somebody in the community, such as a teenager, elderly person and police officer, to teach their fellow pupils about the effects litter and other environmental crime can have on a community and the environment. So far 13 schools have taken part in the anti-litter drama workshops with 30 more to follow by the end of the school year.

Merton’s anti-litter code
The borough’s anti-litter code is now available online and sets out what residents can expect from the council and how residents can help to stop people littering the borough. The 19-point code lists the actions the council takes to clear up litter from the borough’s roads, including investing in street cleaning equipment and enforcing the £75 fine for dropping litter. The code also includes a number of ways in which residents and visitors to the borough can help the council tackle litter and keep Merton clean.

Getting tough on enforcement
Every year the council spends £5 million on clearing litter, graffiti and fly tipping from the streets; money it could spend on services to benefit residents more. Everyone has a responsibility to help keep the streets clean by not dropping litter – that includes cigarette butts and gum. The council is planning to use specialised environmental crime enforcement officers, who will be working alongside the council’s enforcement team to clamp down on littering. So if you don’t want to pay a fine, don’t drop litter.

Parking boost for local residents

We know being able to park outside your own front door is important for you. That’s why we have frozen the cost of Residents’ Parking Permits over the last three years. And we’re freezing it again in this year’s budget.

We’re also freezing the cost of visitor parking permits for the fourth year in a row, and the cost of the re-introduced popular half day parking permit. This makes it easier for residents who have friends popping round or who need to call out a plumber, for example.

While we know from talking to residents that parking outside your house is what matters most to you, we also want to help local businesses and residents who need to nip to their local shops. To help neighbourhood stores cope with the effects of the recession, parking restrictions at some shopping parades are being changed, offering free parking for short stays.

Sara Williams from the council’s economic development team explained:

“Ease of parking does affect whether people stop and use local shops, because it’s often so much easier to drive to big out of town stores. However, we will only make changes where they are backed by local residents and businesses.”

Taking a case by case approach, the council conducted local surveys of residents and businesses close to 34 shopping parades. The results differed according to each area which demonstrated the importance of speaking to residents and businesses at each parade. However, some common requests were made.

Changes introduced so far include those at Burlington Road shopping parade, on Kingston Road between Vernon Avenue and Dupont Road, where pay and display bays have been introduced with a maximum stay of two hours and 20 minutes free. And in Motspur Park you can park for one hour for free on sections of West Barnes Lane. Further schemes are being introduced on Kingston Road by Oxford Avenue; London Road, Tooting; Firstway and Botsford Road.

Finding the right change for parking meters can be a headache for drivers, so the council is also making things easier by introducing mobile phone payments. This new cashless parking means you will be able to top up by phone if you stay longer than intended and gives you less chance of overpaying. It will be introduced across the borough later this year.

Money matters

As Merton Council sets its budget for 2014/15, our aim is twofold: to protect the services you value most and keep bills down. Efficiency and long-term financial planning are key to achieving this.

Savings have to be made. Since 2010 the Government has reduced the grants given to local councils. Here in Merton, we’ve had to deal with a budget gap of more than £70m. That means we’ve had to prioritise.

One piece of good news is your council tax has been frozen again. With many residents still feeling the pinch, we’re trying to help. Indeed, this is the fourth year in a row it has been frozen. We’ve also maintained council tax rebates for low income households.

The independent annual survey of residents shows fewer people worrying about council tax than ever before (see page nine for more about this survey). However, keeping council tax down remains a top council priority.

We are also freezing the cost of parking outside your home for a fourth consecutive year. And we’ve frozen the cost of a visitor parking permits as well as re-introducing the the half-day visitors’ parking permit.

While some other councils have been forced to close libraries, Merton’s innovative volunteer scheme, new technology and efficient use of resources have meant we have not only kept our libraries open but Wimbledon Library has been refurbished, Donald Hope Library in Colliers Wood has extended its opening hours and West Barnes Library has increased the support available to the public.

Safeguarding the most vulnerable members of society is a key council priority. So while there will be changes at our children’s centres, with work being targeted at the people who need most help, they will all remain open. We are also adding £1m a year to the budget to meet the care needs of our oldest residents.
Keeping the borough clean and green is another top priority, and once again we’re protecting the weekly street sweep and weekly rubbish collections. However, while the independent survey suggests we do a good job keeping streets clean, people littering on our streets is a concern, so we are targeting resources at this issue – by taking tougher action against people who drop litter, including fines. We’re also bringing in a new smartphone app to help you report trouble spots.

Yet again, most of the money to bridge the gap in our funding is being found from efficiency savings and good financial management, especially in so-called back office functions, for example by reducing the number of senior posts and improving our computer systems.

Our legal team is one of the best in the country and will save money by sharing services with three other councils. We are in the process of procuring a better value CCTV contract and a better deal on our leisure contracts, and later this year we launch a big recycling drive to cut household waste going to landfill, saving £250,000 a year (read more about the Mega Recycle on page 12).

By being careful with money, we’re able to plan ahead and continue to give our young people the start in life they deserve. To ensure there are enough school places to get a good education close to home, we’ve already spent £80m on creating 2,000 new places for primary-aged pupils. An additional 2,000 places will be added over the next four years at a cost of £75m.

In the last year, we’ve improved a number of children’s playgrounds. Now, to help families have fun together and get fit, we’re able to replace Morden Park pool with a new family-friendly leisure centre. Previous plans were too costly, too ambitious or relied on external funding that never came. But by imposing financial discipline we can finally go ahead – read more about our plans on page 11.

When German emperor Kaiser Wilhelm made a state visit to Wimbledon in 1891, crowds four deep lined the streets to watch the spectacle. A few years later his hostile action against France and Belgium led Britain to defend its European allies, resulting in one of the most brutal conflicts in history where millions died across the globe.

In Merton one early impact of the war was the arrival of refugees from Belgium in August 1914. A sister to the Belgian king had a Wimbledon home and set up a relief committee. More than 500 people received refuge in the borough along with food, clothing and medical aid.

In 1914 Wimbledon Hospital became one of the first medical institutions to treat casualties which was a great source of community pride. Of 500 men treated between 1914 and 1918, only one died.

Wimbledon Common was used as a base for some of the first recruits to respond to Kitchener’s call for volunteers. Its varied terrain was used for training and parts of the golf course were dug up to create practice trenches. The camp could not provide living quarters so billeting took place around the area.

Among the recruits were men from the 190th Brigade, Royal Field Artillery – the last ‘Pals battalion’ made up of friends and workmates who would serve, and in many cases die, together on the battlefields. Around 700 men answered the call to enlist, and within a month the brigade was at full strength.

A number of local men were honoured for their actions, many posthumously, including George Cates who received the Victoria Cross. Cates died in 1917 after placing his foot on a bomb to take the blast, saving many lives. William White was awarded the Victoria Cross in 1918 for bravery, endangering his life for the sake of others. He died in 1974.

Centenary events

- There will be an outdoor multi-faith event in August.
- Two commemorative paving stones will be installed to honour Merton’s Victoria Cross recipients: George Cates and William White.
- The Merton Memories photography collection launches this spring and includes images from the period.
- Members of the armed forces will recite WWI poems to be viewed on YouTube.

If you are a relative of George Cates or William White, please call 020 8545 4161 as we would like to know more about where they lived in Merton.
Protecting your town centres

For 20 years, Merton Council’s CCTV cameras have been helping the police detect crimes and providing reassurance to residents.

The first eight cameras were installed in Mitcham in 1994. Today there are more than 200 around the borough, managed by Merton Council working in partnership with the police. There are cameras in Wimbledon town centre and village as well as in Mitcham and Morden town centres and on Circle Housing Merton Priory (formerly Merton Priory Homes) housing estates.

Cameras are monitored 24 hours a day by eight staff members working in shifts at the Civic Centre in Morden. They view the screens for suspicious activity, which they report by radio to the police or community wardens on housing estates. They are also able to transfer footage to the police via a live feed if a crime is taking place.

Shops, pubs and clubs who are signed up to the Town Link scheme have a direct communication link to the CCTV control room which means they can radio warnings to one another, for example if known shoplifters or bag thieves are in the area or if pubs customers are being drunk and disorderly.

According to Claire Cuffie from the Safer Merton team, many crimes are solved because incidents are spotted on CCTV but it’s not just about crime and disorder. “There have been a number of instances where we’ve been able to identify when people are at risk too. We often receive calls about missing persons or vulnerable people and we’ve been able to use CCTV to help find them and make them safe.”

For Claire the benefits of the service are also in the reassurance cameras offer to residents: “Certainly all the evidence we have is that people feel safer if they know there is CCTV around.”

“We often receive calls about missing persons or vulnerable people and we’ve been able to use CCTV to help find them and make them safe.”

Our business
is creating jobs

For many local families it can be hard to find a job, with young people in particular facing higher rates of unemployment. The council’s economic development team is dedicated to helping set up and grow businesses in the borough so that local residents have a better chance of a good local job.

With the Leader of the council, Councillor Stephen Alambritis, having a business background, it’s no surprise that helping businesses to grow and to create jobs is a top priority for the council. Councillor Alambritis says: “As a businessman myself and a former spokesperson for the Federation of Small Businesses, I understand the importance of business to the local economy and the support businesses need in these difficult times.”

The council’s business growth officer, Eric Orsei, says: “Business is critical for the borough. Merton is probably one of the only councils investing significantly in small business at the moment, most local authorities have scaled back on support because they’ve had to prioritise. But we know how important helping business is if we want to create jobs for local people. “We have 7,500 businesses employing 57,000 people. We want to support them as much as possible so have put together a range of programmes to help.”

One of these is the Merton Business Support Service. Funded by the council, the service is delivered by the chamber of commerce along with leading business consultants. It helps people transform their ideas into business plans and arrange finance, and then works with them through the start-up process.

Eric says: “A large proportion of new businesses fail in the first 12 months, so we offer a lot of hand holding to give them the best chance of succeeding. You need the right support, if you’ve never started a business before. There’s so much you need to know, from registering with HMRC to employment law.”

The service provides this along with advice for existing businesses, including mentors to help develop new markets, raising funds or dealing with staffing issues. The team also provides loans, which new businesses can still struggle to access from the banks. Companies can borrow to help them grow, plus micro loans of between £500 and £10,000 help start-ups weather the recession, paying for anything from equipment to training.

There are also grants to help retailers survive the decline of the high street. Up to £10,000 is available for shop front makeovers, aimed at increasing footfall with the council funding up to 60% of the cost.

“We have 7,500 businesses employing 57,000 people. We want to support them as much as possible...”

For Eric the role brings real job satisfaction: “When you know you’ve developed a programme that has impacted on people starting up in businesses or helped companies grow and as a result created jobs – that’s really rewarding.”

The feedback we get suggests most Merton residents enjoy living here. We do too, which is why we want our town centres to be great places to visit. So take a tour around the borough to see what we’re doing to improve your area. A number of projects are planned or under way, often thanks to the council’s ability to attract funding to the borough.

Colliers Wood

From watercress beds to William Morris, Colliers Wood’s rich heritage is at the heart of a range of improvements in “the Wood”. After listening to input from residents and businesses, the council, TfL and the Mayor of London’s office are finalising exciting new designs.

A new town square, Christchurch Place, will have an urban design reminiscent of those historic watercress beds. Nearby Baltic Close will be landscaped to echo the greenery of neighbouring Wandle Park, and new boundary markers will reflect the local arts and crafts movement of designers like Morris.

The revamp is due for completion in autumn 2015, and will complement the redevelopment of Colliers Wood tower, which is also under way.

Morden

Plans to reinvigorate Morden with new shops, housing and leisure facilities are due to emerge this spring, with publication of a new planning brief for Morden station. The brief, produced by the council with TfL, sets planning guidance for the site – the first stage in its redevelopment.

Wimbledon

Debate about how Wimbledon town centre might evolve was stimulated last year at a conference called, appropriately enough, futureWimbledon. Now, to generate more ideas, the council’s regeneration team, with partners Love Wimbledon, the Design Council and architecture group CABE, are launching a competition inviting architects, designers and interested local people to create a vision for the town – the more creative the better. The results go on display later this year.

Mitcham

Rediscover Mitcham, a project to enhance the look and feel of the town and help businesses thrive, continues to get investment from the council and the Mayor’s Outer London Fund. The next phase, including a facelift for the Fair Green, begins this summer.
“I gave him a present in the form of a front door key on a personalised keyring. I hope it gave him a sense of belonging to a family who really want to have him there.”

Everyone is Welcome!
Mascot Telecare is provided by the London Borough of Merton and helps to provide safety, security and well-being, enabling people to live independently in their own homes. The service – available 24 hours a day, every day of the year – uses simple technology linked to our response centre based in Morden’s Civic Centre.

Our friendly team are trained to respond quickly and appropriately to calls for help when a pendant button is pressed. The alarm works as a two-way radio and they are able to hear you from anywhere in your house. In an emergency they will contact the emergency services and remain in contact with you until they are satisfied you are safe and well. We also offer a response service for those within 5 miles of the Civic Centre.

The service is available from as little as £4.38 per week which includes installation, monitoring and equipment.

For more information or to arrange for a leaflet and price list to be sent to you, please call 020 8274 5940

Mani and Steve Cooksley live in Merton. In 2012 they decided to become foster carers. My Merton caught up with them to hear their story.

How long have you been foster carers?
Since August 2012. We have been approved by Merton Council to look after young people from five to 18 years old.

How old are the young people you are looking after now?
We’re foster carers to a boy and a girl who are both 17. Our own children have grown up and left home.

What made you decide to foster?
Mani: I work in a bank and I was opening accounts for foster children so I got talking to the foster carers about what it is like and their experiences. Coming from Rwanda I could really relate to the feelings of loss these children must face.

What’s most challenging about fostering?
In the beginning, the young people aren’t used to the stability. Sometimes they just don’t talk to you. But it’s our role to give them vision and encourage them to stay on the right path.

What has been the most rewarding?
When the young people in your care grow to trust you. You need to reassure them that you’ll always be there for them no matter what.

What qualities do you need to be a foster carer for teenagers?
Patience and tolerance, good at listening and negotiating and lots of energy. It’s important you involve yourself in their interests.
